CHINESE REDS DEMAND U. S. APOLOGY

STATE HOUSE, BOSTON 1945

STORY ON PAGE 2

Mike's Journey Ends—An air trip from London ends for 14-months-old Michael Shaun Collins as he arrives at Minneapolis and is handed into the waiting arms of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Collins, by airline stewardess Jerry Rudquist. Little Mike, whose Irish mother died last summer, is the British-born son of Sgt. James Collins, who is stationed in Europe.

Chinese Reds Ask Apology by U. S.

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Nov. 8 (AP)—Chinese Communists demanded today that Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, U. S. commander in China, apologize and that compensation be paid for alleged American "interference" in China's internal struggle.

The Reds also demanded that Chinese government, troops withdraw from all Red-dominated areas as the price for peace, but asserted that the government, instead, was planning an all-out offensive for which 90 divisions already were being massed in the north.

The demand for Wedemeyer's apology was contained in one of four protesting letters sent to the American commander by the Communists' Yenan headquarters, where spokesmen called "a complete lie" government claims that the Nationalists have been and would remain strictly on the defensive.

More than 70 government divisions have massed around "liberated areas" of Honan Province, and Hopek Province is surrounded by more than 20 government divisions, the Communists asserted.

Chou En-lai, Yenan negotiator here and No. 2 Chinese Communist, announced the Yenan answer to Kuomintang peace proposals shortly after reports that the Russians had withdrawn from the Manchurian ports of Hulutao and Yingkow (Newchwang) leaving the Chinese Reds in command, heightened the already tense atmosphere.

Chou said: "The situation appears dangerous."

He added he would propose a neutral committee be formed to investigate civil war conditions, and in almost the same breath charged Chiang Kai-shek with attempting to exterminate the Communists while holding peace parleys with them. The investigating committee also would consider activities of American troops in disputed areas.

The Communists have obtained proof that while the peace negotiations were under way, Chiang ordered his northern generals to "liquidate" the Communists, Chou said.

Other developments were:

1—The Central Government admitted receiving its first serious setback in the fighting in southern Hopeh province, losing 70,000 men and two field generals and being forced to withdraw northward.

2—Communists followed up the announcement in Washington that American marines would be withdrawn from the trouble zone with a series of four protests to the American commander in Yenan, and held the Americans "responsible for any grave consequence" resulting from their presence.

3—The long-awaited reply of the Yenan Communist headquarters to Kuomintang peace proposals were received in Chungking and was understood to contain counter-proposals necessitating further delay in the cease-fire order.

Blast Killed 50 Typhoon Victims

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Nov. 8 (AP)—Survivors of last month's typhoon at Okinawa, arriving here from Manila, told reporters that 50 to 100 Seabees and sailors were killed when they built a fire to dry their clothes on an abandoned Jap ammunition dump Oct. 10.

Four members of the crew of the Liberty ship Oulahan, wrecked in the typhoon, said the fire caused an explosion that blew many high into the air.

Survivors, returned here on the S. S. Howell Lykes, comprised the crews of the Victory ships Jack Singer, Oulahan and Brookholst Livingston. Among them were Joseph Kalel and Phillip Gill of Boston.

LIBERTY SHIP CRASHED

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The American Liberty ship Arthur Riggs suffered damage to her hull last night in a collision with the British ship Egton off the southeast coast of England.

Pearl Harbor Files Refused

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—A Senate-House committee today denied to Sen. Brewster (R.) of Maine the right to look into Navy Department files in search of what Brewster said is a missing message bearing on the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Brewster's motion that he be given authority to look through the files was defeated on a five-to-five tie vote, Chairman Barkley (D.) of Kentucky told reporters after a closed meeting of the investigating committee.

The committee's action came shortly after President Truman had ordered that the committee must be supplied with any information it desires.

Film of Old Nazi Glory Fails to Clear Hess' Mind

By GEORGE TUCKER

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 8 (AP)—Rudolph Hess, third ranking Nazi until his unexplained airplane flight to Britain at the height of the war, today watched newsreels of his days of greatest power.

Watching Hess were Justice Robert Jackson, U. S. prosecutor for the coming war crimes trial; Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, head of the U. S. Offices of Strategic Services, and psychiatrists.

The beetle-browed Nazi, who asserts he can remember nothing, sat handcuffed to two guards as a 1934 version of "Party Day in Nuernburg" unreeled. Specially placed lights illuminated his countenance.

The picture started with a rich background of Wagnerian music. Hess half rose from his chair.

He saw himself as a zealot, weaving a hypnotic spell over a vast Nazi party congress. He saw Hitler leap forward to praise him.

Officials wondered if the film would shake from Hess the amnesia he declared has robbed him of all memory. The outcome might determine if he is to live or die.

Hess was impassive during most of the film as Hermann Goering, Julius Streicher and other defendants paraded across the screen.

The show over, Hess tried to brush his hand against his eyes. He handcuffs interfered. Slowly he said:

"I recognized Hitler and Goering. I recognized the others, but only because I heard their names mentioned and have seen their names on cell blocks in this jail."

"I must have been there because, obviously, I was there. But I don't remember."

The guards led Hess back to his cell.

Attlee to Speak Before Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee of Great Britain will be invited to address a joint session of Congress next week, House Speaker Rayburn said today.

U. S., Soviet Far Apart On Jap, Turk Policies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Negotiations between Moscow and Washington over a variety of problems ranging from Japan to Turkey appeared today to be farther from success than officials here had hoped.

Here is the situation:

1—Foreign Commissar Molotov has replied to an American proposal for an Allied control agency in Tokyo which would be subordinate to the Far Eastern Advisory Commission in Washington. There are strong indications that Molotov turned down this proposal and that Secretary of State Byrnes is not inclined to compromise the issue further.

2—The United States has laid a four-point program for revising control of the Dardenelles before the Turkish government. This would give Russia some advantages in the use of the straits which she does not now have. But it falls far short of Russia's reported desire for military bases on the vital link between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean.

3—A Russian-Turkish treaty of nonaggression and friendship which had run for many years, expired yesterday following Soviet denunciation. Diplomatic officials say they fear that Russia may make a few psychological passes at Turkey in order to gain the right to set up Dardenelles bases on Turkish soil and also to win over certain territories in northeastern Turkey which the Russians have claimed.

4—The problem of the atomic bomb and peacetime uses of atomic energy becomes more acute between the two countries, in the opinion of diplomatic authorities, as the time approaches for conferences among President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee of Britain and Mackenzie King of Canada.

MAY BE FREED—John George Dasch, Nazi saboteur leader, who surrendered to the FBI and wrecked the plot to destroy key American industries, may be given further clemency or a full pardon, it was speculated in Washington today. Six of his companions were electrocuted.

GI Baby's Ocean, Land Hop Ends

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 8 (AP)—"Mike" Collins is home.

The 14-months-old motherless son of Sgt. James Collins arrived by air from New York just before midnight to a welcoming party that would do credit to a movie great.

In the arms of Northwest Airlines stewardess Jerry Rudquist, Michael Shaun Collins faced a battery of photographers, microphones and floodlights.

Sleepy after fog had lengthened the journey from New York to a full 12 hours, "Mike" soon came awake to be put into the arms of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Collins of Stillwater, whose "family" he is to be until his soldier father gets home. The sergeant's Irish wife died last July.

Absence of Stalin Fails to Stir Moscow

MOSCOW, Nov. 8 (INS)—Russians were not surprised yesterday at the absence of Premier Stalin from the October revolution anniversary ceremonies.

About a month ago it was announced officially Stalin was on vacation. His leave-taking was normal, and he was followed out of Moscow by many of his commissars who also sought a holiday.

3 Slain Cheering King Michael

BUCHAREST, Romania, Nov. 8 (AP) — Troops machinegunned crowds demonstrating before the royal palace today in defiance of a government order prohibiting celebrations of King Michael's 24th birthday, and Communists precipitated a six-hour riot attempting to scatter the throngs.

The fighting erupted when 15 truckloads of Communists, waving clinched fists and shouting "long live the Groza government," roared into Royal Square and tried to disperse the 40,000 to 50,000 people there.

At least three were killed and perhaps a dozen wounded.

New Fords Up 6 P.C. Plus $30

DETROIT, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Detroit News said today that, under OPA pricing formula, prices of new Ford cars would rise 6 per cent, plus $30 allowance for "improvements"—higher horsepower motors—and Studebaker prices would go up 12 per cent.

The News said its information came from an OPA source.

U. S. Training 123 Disabled Girl Vets

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Veterans Administration disclosed today 123 disabled women veterans have entered its vocational rehabilitation program.

Most are nurses and servicewomen bombed in London.

Two are totally disabled. One is an amputee. Others are 10 to 70 per cent disabled.

Asks Ruling That Curley Now Mayor

A ruling on whether or not Cong. James M. Curley could assume the office of mayor immediately was sought today from Atty. Gen. Clarence H. Barnes by Rep. James P. McDevitt of Charlestown, sponsor of the legislation which gave Mayor Kerrigan full powers last January.

His request came while Curley was in Washington to put his "Build Boston" campaign into immediate operation by obtaining federal aid and co-operation in developing the city's port, and after the disclosure that Mayor Kerrigan had added 28 persons to the city's payroll and given 67 others wage increases on Tuesday, the legal deadline for such action.

In a letter to Barnes requesting the ruling, McDevitt explained his sponsorship of the legislation raising Kerrigan from the status of acting mayor to the full powers of the office and said:

"It is my contention as the author of this bill that the duly elected James M. Curley is now entitled to assume the office. It was my specific intention in drawing this legislation that as soon as the people of Boston expressed a preference for mayor their choice should take office."

City Hall and State House circles yesterday expressed the belief that Curley would not assume office under the law until the regular inauguration in January.

Before leaving for the nation's capital, Cong. Curley announced he was inviting heads of banks, insurance companies, industry and business and labor leaders to serve on his advisory committee and to meet with him in Boston at an organization session next Tuesday.

The Kerrigan appointments and wage increases were approved by the mayor just before the deadline set up by a state law passed in 1939.

The law, designed to curb the practice of outgoing mayors of making wholesale pay increases and appointments, would make any salary boost or appointment made by Mayor Kerrigan after election day inoperative after next Jan. 31.

The Kerrigan-approved promotions, wage jumps and appointments were submitted directly to the auditor's office and became effective immediately.

Fourteen of the appointments were to fill vacancies in various branches of the city service; 11 were military substitutes to the fire department, and three were military substitutes in other departments.

The promotions and pay jumps ranged from increase of 50 cents a day to a top boost of $750 a year.

Mayor-elect Curley, asserting that in the last 14 days 10 ships have been unable to discharge cargo in Boston because of lack of docking space, announced that port development was the main reason for his trip to Washington.

"I'm going to see if we can't get the use of facilities of the Army Base rather than have ships diverted to other ports for the loading and discharge of cargoes," he said. He also disclosed that he planned to speed up work at the Logan International Airport, asserting that there should be 2000 to 3000 men working there all the time.

—Where Heart Is

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., Nov. 8 (INS)—School authorities pondered today what to do about a district superintendent, just back from the wars, who temporarily solved his own housing problem by moving with his wife into the home economics classroom of Bronxville Manor High School.

Pres. Robert J. Treanor of the local civic association threatened to call a mass meeting.

"Why," he exclaimed, "suppose war veterans storm the school and demand the right to bivouac in the gymnasium?"

Kissing-Bee Suit Wife Tells of Sleuthing Trips

A story of how she acted as her own private detective, while her husband was allegedly seeking romantic adventure away from his hearth, was told in Salem Probate Court today by Mrs. Catherine T. Downing, 31, of Lynn, in her "kissing-bee" separation suit against Ralph B. Downing, Salem corporation executive.

In the course of her sleuthing, she said, she found a wedding ring bearing the initials of her husband's secretary, in his safe deposit box. She added, "I also found war bonds in the box made out in the name of his secretary." The box was in an Ipswich bank, she said.

Downing's counsel, Atty. S. Howard Donnell, read into the record the name on the bonds. It was Marion Arlene Donovan of Washington st., Ipswich.

In keeping tabs on her husband's trips to Ipswich, Mrs. Downing testified, she made "10 or 20 trips" there. "I went there to see how he was spending his time," she related. "I parked my car near his secretary's house one night, and at 10:30 I saw him come out. A woman came to the door with him.

"I saw him kiss her as he left," she went on. "They embraced, too."

Before they separated last January, Mrs. Downing said, her husband frequently stayed out until after midnight.

"I felt a married man should be in by 11:30," she added.

She denied she had ever: (1) hit her husband over the head with a rolling pin while he was sleeping; (2) refused to give him homemade pies; (3) refused to make coffee for him; (4) refused to ply him with steak or chicken; (5) pushed him over a piano stool.

Mrs. Downing, who previously had testified her mate had kissed "all the girls" but her at a New Year's party in their home—his secretary included—testified today that 35 guests were present. In the course of the merriment they consumed 17 quarts of liquor, she said.

She admitted she had been so irked by the alleged kissing episode, which followed the turning out of lights at midnight, she said, that she roundly slapped her husband's face.

Downing is waiting to take the stand.

Runaway Horse Perils Children

While scores of young school children scattered to safety, Herbert Shribman, 22, of Fifth st., Chelsea, halted a runaway horse on Everett ave., Chelsea, today just before the frightened animal reached the playground of the Williams School.

The horse, attached to an ice wagon, was traveling at high speed when Shribman leaped from the curb and grabbed the reins. He was dragged 40 feet before the horse stopped, with Shribman beneath the wagon. He was taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital with injuries to his right leg.

Fireman Hurt On Waterfront, Traffic Snarled

Traffic was snarled and one firemen injured today as a stubborn, smoky fire beneath the flooring of a Commercial st. building gave firemen one of the longest one-alarm fights on record.

Using electric saws to cut planks, and pumps to suck out smoke from between the flooring and a concrete base, firemen worked for more than eight hours to squelch the persistent flames.

Hose lines stretched across Commercial st. caused rerouting of traffic, and officials feared a serious jam if the fire continued through the afternoon rush hour.

Fireman Archibald Devlin, Morton st., Dorchester, of Engine 25, suffered lacerations of the left hand while using an electric saw.

Fire Chief Samuel Pope said the fire had been smoldering for three or four days. He gave the cause as spontaneous combustion.

The building is occupied by the Standard Grocery Co. on Old Constitution wharf.

Zero in West As Hub Basks

Boston basked in summerlike heat today, with the mercury in the lower 70's, while the western part of the country and Canada were harassed by subzero blasts and heavy snow.

The temperature in Boston reached 73 at 2:30 p. m., only one degree short of the 15-year-old mark for this date.

Sixteen inches of snow were reported in Montana and Idaho. Temperatures plummeted to 34 below near Edmonton, Alberta, and 11 below at Big Piney, Wyo.

Official Count Gives Curley 51,411 Victory

Official figures made public today by the Boston Election Commission showed that Cong. James M. Curley received 111,824 votes to be elected mayor of Boston with a lead of 51,411 votes over his nearest rival, Mayor John E. Kerrigan.

Kerrigan finished second with 60,413. William Arthur Reilly was third with 16,135. John J. Sawtelle had 12,743, Joseph Lee, Jr., 10,042, and Michael P. Feeney 3,298.

The election commission said 247,295 votes were cast, 66.7 per cent of the city's registered vote. The total included 2837 blank ballots.

On the referendum for giving city councilors a $1500 annual pay increase, 128,405 voters balloted no, 56,580 yes and 62,310 others left the question unanswered.

A feature of the school committee fight was that Otis Archer Hood, Communist candidate, carried the strongly Republican Ward 5, one of the city's two "silk stocking districts" with 2512 votes although he ran seventh in the race.

Official figures gave the winner, Dr. Patrick J. Foley, 80,181 votes while Michael J. Ward, who finished second, had 75,277 votes. Both were re-elected.

Gladys Shapiro, only woman in the contest, had an official total of 42,277 votes for third place.

Boston Drive On to Win United Nations Capital

Gov. Tobin announced today he had invited civic, educational and religious leaders to a Hotel Statler luncheon next Monday to discuss plans for seeking selection of Boston as permanent headquarters of the United Nations Organization. He said he would announce the membership of the committee at that time.

The Governor refused to confirm or deny New York reports he had asked President James Bryant Conant of Harvard to head the committee. He also was non-committal on reports from the same source that President Karl T. Compton of MIT and former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams had been asked to serve.

The Governor has transferred $10,000 from the emergency fund to assist in the move to bring the organization here.

If successful, the selection of Boston as the United Nations city would mean representatives of 50 foreign nations and their staffs, amounting to some 10,000 people, would be living here.

Selection of the seat of the organization, which must be made by Dec. 1, is dependent on several factors.

These include climate, geographical accessibility, transportation and communication facilities, educational and library resources and accommodations for the large membership of the United Nations organization.

Construction of large new buildings would be required should Boston be chosen as the United Nations city but there is ample space in the Greater Boston area for such a project.

Other east coast locations which have been discussed include Philadelphia, Dutchess County, N. Y., Monticello, Va., Detroit and Chicago.

Court Weighs Bar's Petition On Santosuosso

The Boston Bar Ass'n today went into the Supreme Judicial Court with a petition asking it to determine whether Atty. Joseph Santosuosso, Cong. Curley's co-defendant in the $85,000 General Equipment Corp. case, was a fit person for membership of the bar in Massachusetts.

Justice Stanley E. Qua, who heard several lawyers testify as character witnesses for Santosuosso, took the petition under advisement.

In 1933, while Curley was mayor, the city settled an $85,000 suit brought by the General Equipment Corp. as the result of water damage at the Kenmore sq. tunnel. The city later sued Curley and Santosuosso to recover more than $30,000 it charged Curley profited from the settlement, and $25,000 reportedly gleaned by Santosuosso, who acted as counsel for the company.

Curley repaid the money, plus interest, under a court order. Santosuosso went through poor debtor proceedings and was ordered to repay the large sum at the rate of $2 a week.

Santosuosso's character witnesses today were Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley, Atty. Wendell P. Murray of Revere, counsel for Curley in the city's suit to recover; Atty. E. Mark Sullivan of Brighton, corporation counsel for the city during Curley's second administration, and Rep. John W. Vaughn of Belmont, also an attorney.

The Bar Ass'n was represented by Neil P. Leonard.

Hub Interne In Suicide Leap

Dr. Joseph Vance Davis, 24, of Waynesville, N. C., an interne since July at a Boston hospital, near an administration building was found dead on the grounds this morning after what Medical Examiner Timothy Leary said was "obviously" a suicide leap.

It was believed Davis hurled himself from a window of the building, in which he had a fifth floor room, or from the roof.

Hospital authorities disclosed the interne had been suffering from a gall bladder ailment.

Nylon Price Slash Predicted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (INS)—An OPA official revealed today that the price of nylon hose is scheduled to drop 25 to 40 per cent, according to style and quality.

The official said the new price listings will go into effect about Nov. 15 to 20.

Nylons will be available at as low as 95 cents under the new plan, with the top quality priced at $1.60 at chain stores and $1.90 at other retailers.

Union Plans Suit Against GMC

DETROIT, Nov. 8 (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers announced today a charge of violating the Wagner Act would be filed against General Motors Corp.

Walter P. Reuther, vice-president of the UAW-CIO, said he would file the charge personally at the Detroit office of the National Labor Relations Board this afternoon.

The charge ensues, Reuther said, from the corporation's "refusal to bargain collectively" with the union over the latter's 30 per cent wage increase demand.

Peace Training Hearing Breaks Up in Row

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The House Military Committee's first session to consider universal military training broke up today in a dispute over a move to postpone further action until next year.

The surprise move by Rep. Short (R.) of Missouri was blocked on a technicality, but he asserted he would renew the attempt tomorrow. He told reporters:

"You can say this bill is dead; it would be dead right now if we had been allowed to vote this morning."

The controversy flared as Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson completed testimony in behalf of the program requested last month by President Truman.

Short, demanding a vote on his motion to defer consideration of the legislation until next year, or at least until after the Senate has acted, had a majority of votes, as many committee members were absent. A rollcall was blocked, however, when Rep. Kilday (D.) of Texas raised the technicality that the committee could not sit while the House itself was in session.

Patterson said many people "have convinced themselves all we shall need in a future crisis are a supply of atomic bombs and a comparative handful of trained men to push the buttons that will set off the bombs. . . .

"On the contrary, military authorities are agreed that the bomb's capacity for destruction and the suddenness with which it can strike enormously increase the need for maintaining trained citizen soldiers capable of swift mobilization in the event of an atomic or air-borne attack."

6 Army Fliers Die In Elmira Crash

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—Six Army fliers were killed today when two planes collided over Chemung County airport. The planes were from the Treasury Department's "Wings of Victory" armada.

Five of the men were in a B-25 bomber and the other was flying a P-47 Thunderbolt.

Court Holds Mother In Slaying of Son, 12

Still dazed with grief over the death of her son and bewildered at legal proceedings which found her charged with murdering the boy she loved, Gertrude Apidianakis, 48, of Massachusetts ave., was arraigned in municipal court today.

She sat alone in the prisoner's dock, looking on dully as her court-appointed attorney, Joseph F. McDonough, sought unsuccessfully to have the charge reduced to manslaughter.

The grief-stricken woman, who had told police she shot Earle, 12, because she feared she was going to lose custody of him, showed no emotion as Judge Daniel J. Gillen ordered her held without bail for the grand jury.

Only emotion she showed came when her former husband, Michael, testified, "I don't think the boy loved her."

Mrs. Apidianakis looked up quickly, stared, and burst into tears.

Apidianakis said F[illegible] "not happy with his m[illegible] wanted to live with [illegible]" He said the boy was "sickly, run down and thin."

McDonough, in his plea for a lesser charge, cited Mrs. Apidianakis' statement to police, that "something snapped" and "I just lost my head."

He told Judge Gillen the woman "was an automaton at time of the shooting and had no control over her actions".

"That is demonstrated by the fact she killed the nearest and dearest and most precious thing in her life", McDonough declared.

Army Point Cut Expected Dec. 1

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (INS)—The War Department was expected today to cut the critical score for general discharge of enlisted men from 60 to 50 points Dec. 1.

Such action was believed foreshadowed by a new ruling which slashed the score for release of overseas veterans now on furlough to 50 points.

Brighton Man, 68, Killed by Auto

Timothy Joseph Fallon, 68, of Westford st., Brighton, was pronounced dead at St. Elizabeth's Hospital today after being struck by an auto at Franklin and Lincoln sts., near his home.

Mrs. Edith P. Potter of Lexington st., Waltham, told police she felt a jar as she drove along Franklin st., and found Fallon lying in the street when she stopped.

Atom Blast Changed Color Of Cattle, Rancher's Beard

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., Nov. 8 (AP)—State Livestock Insp. Alfred Hunter reports cattle changed color and a rancher's beard became streaked with gray following the first atomic bomb test near here last July 16.

Confessing he was skeptical before seeing the cattle, Hunter said the red-coated, white-faced Herefords appeared to have a heavy frost across their backs.

He said the new color was not deep, and the cattle showed no signs of injury.

Will Wrye, a rancher at Bingham, N. M., said that following the explosion the beard on the sides of his face first appeared to have been seared and now was growing back white, while the hair on his chin remained brown. He said he neither saw the bright flash nor heard the rumble which neighbors witnessed at the time.

Farm hands at a ranch near Carrizozo, N. M., told Hunter their cat was entirely black before the bomb test. Now it is half white.

Missing Boy's Mother Clings to Kidnap Hope

By JANE COCHRAN

DOWNIEVILLE, Cal., Nov. 8 (INS)—Mrs. Sally tum Suden, frantic with anxiety as almost the last hope of finding her son alive faded, sat on the porch of her mountain home and talked in a faltering voice of her missing boy. Clinging desperately to the hope that 3-year-old Dickie tum Suden is alive and may be seen somewhere in the hands of strangers, the heartbroken mother described the golden-haired child's mannerisms to International News Service so that he might be recognized.

Lines of worry crossed Sally tum Suden's beautiful face. She is not the type to show tears, however, and her voice was composed as she talked of her boy, who has been missing since last Thursday, when she placed him in the yard of her mountain home to play.

Possibilities exist that Dickie has been taken by a child-starved woman who was struck by the boy's charm.

"Dickie is such a friendly chap—he would speak to anyone," said Sally tum Suden. "He always said 'Hi,' and never 'Hello.' If you met him on the street and said 'Hello,' he would reply 'Hi,' and then he would say, 'How are you?'

"He is exceedingly gregarious—and talks a lot. He is short for his age and has a round babyish face, and a good vocabulary for a child.

"Dickie doesn't use baby talk. He uses such words as 'lovely,' 'wonderful,' 'amusing,' and so on, he loves cats and dogs and is not afraid to pet a strange animal."

The missing boy, scion of two prominent California families, also is used to people and to meeting strangers, Sally declared.

Turning to a description of her boy's appearance, Sally tum Suden emphasized that Dickie's blond hair is not curly. His eyes are blue—with thick, long, black lashes.

Dickie has one facial characteristic that is especially distinct. His baby teeth do not quite meet properly, and his chin is usually damp because he "drools a bit," the mother said.

He likes candy, milk — almost everything. He is not at all shy about being in strange places.

2-Hour Parking Limit Retained By 4 to 1 Vote

The Boston Traffic Commission today voted 4 to 1 to continue two-hour parking in the city after merchants and business leaders spoke vigorously against any change at a hearing held at police headquarters. Lone dissenter was Chairman William Hickey.

Those appearing at the hearing, with one exception, were opposed to the proposal that the limit be cut to one hour, declaring that retail merchants would suffer and that out-of-town shoppers would be discouraged from coming into the city.

Daniel Bloomfield of the Retail Trade Board led the group favoring retention of the present rule, put into affect Aug. 25, 1941. He said two hours were needed by shoppers to accomplish their missions, and that any cut would seriously handicap the department store delivery system.

During the hearing, Police Comr. Thomas F. Sullivan disclosed that so far this year a total of 78,000 automobiles have been tagged in Boston for overtime parking.

Members of the commission who attended were Comr. Sullivan, Chairman Hickey, Park Comr. William P. Long, Public Works Comr. Robert P. Curley and Street Comr. John A. Donahue.

Rudolph Nettle, a High st. business man, said some concerns had left Bosson because of the two-hour rule.

Winner by 286 Asks Recount

City Councilor Joseph M. Scannell of South Boston, re-elected in Ward 6 by a margin of only 288 votes, took out a recount petition today with the announcement he wished to protect his own interests after hearing reports defeated candidates in the race would seek retabulation of the vote.

Another recount petition was filed by A. Frank Foster, who was defeated for the Ward 5 council seat by the incumbent, Councilor James C. Bayley, Jr. Petitions must be filed by 5 p. m. tomorrow with the election commission.

Previously six petitions had been taken out by defeated candidates, including one by James J. Twohig, Jr., who ran second to Scannell in the Ward 6 battle.

The other petitions were in behalf of Michael Bevilacqua, who lost to Councilor Joseph Russo in Ward 3; James F. Condon, defeated in Ward 7 by Thomas F. Linehan; Laurence H. Banks, who lost in Ward 9 to Councilor Daniel F. Sullivan; William L. Shea, defeated by Councilor William A. Carey in Ward 10, and Rep. Edward J. Mulligan, who lost the Ward 16 fight to Councilor Philip A. Fish.

Woman's Story Stirs New Hunt for Dickie

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8 (AP)—California police searched today for two men who a San Francisco housewife said forced their way into her home and abducted a waif resembling missing Dickie tum Suden, 3.

San Francisco authorities, however, said several discrepancies have been found in the story of Mrs. Mildred Beer, wife of a Navy commander now in the Pacific.

Mrs. Beer told police a blond, 3 or 4-year-old boy, resembling the tum Suden child, came to her door. After she fed him and phoned the police, she said, two men pushed their way inside, struck her and carried the child to a car parked outside, then drove away. Mrs. Beer, partly blind, gave conflicting details in her story.

Hub Union Demands More Ships for Vets

Aiming to get all eligible veterans home for Christmas, the Port of Boston Maritime Union today warned President Truman and the War Shipping Administration that after Dec. 1 they will supply no men to man ships if the government fails to place more transports in service.

Announcement was made at the Portland st. offices by Robert Mills, union agent, who outlined for veterans' organizations a new program to speed up returnees from both Europe and the Pacific.

Mills said a meeting of the national committee was to be held to get more transports for the "bring the boys home for Christmas" program.

He stated at least 20 ships that could be used as troop transports are tied up on the West Coast, and that others have been released by the government as freight carriers instead of being put into transport service.

"Any Victory ship can be converted into a troop transport at our yards in eight days," Mills said. "There is no excuse for high-point veterans hanging around Europe for weeks."

Two vessels well known in Boston, which Mills spoke of, are the Eastern Steamship's Yarmouth and the former Merchants & Miners vessel, Fairfax. He said the Fairfax was hauling freight to Bermuda and the Yarmouth was tied up on the West Coast.

Girl Student Hammer Victim

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8 (AP)—A pretty girl, beaten by a hammer-wielding motorist, is in too serious a condition to be questioned further, police said today.

Justine Hume, 18, of Stamford, Ct., freshman at the Horticulture School at Ambler, told police she was waiting for a bus when an auto passed "so close to me I thought it would knock me down. Something hit me on the head.

"Momentarily stunned, I sat down on an embankment. The car stopped a dozen yards away and a man got out and walked back to me. He stood over me, grinning horribly. He said suddenly, 'I'm sorry.'

"I got to my feet and saw he had a mechanic's hammer in his hand. He swung and, as it struck my head, he said, 'There.'"

She said the man struck her again, then tossed her into some bushes.

300 to Be Seized In Jap Atrocities

TOKYO, Nov. 8 (AP)—Arrest of approximately 300 persons on charges of responsibility for atrocities and mistreatment of Allied prisoners of war was ordered today by Gen. MacArthur.

The directive required that the suspects, mostly guards at prison camps, be apprehended by the Japanese government and turned over "at the earliest practicable date" to the 11th Army Corps, to be held in prison in Yokohama awaiting trial.

Busy Vandals

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 8 (AP)—Surveying six gravestones overturned by vandals, J. C. Browder, superintendent of the municipal Woodlawn Cemetery, said, "This must have been a contest to see who could upset the largest stone."

The smallest weighed 600 pounds, the largest 3000.

Cholera Epidemic Hits Indo-China

HONG KONG, Nov. 8 (AP)—An American medical team told of a cholera epidemic in Haiphong, French Indo-China, where about a dozen U. S. transports are waiting to take 30,000 Chinese troops to North China.

Lt. Com. Elmer W. Rebtick of the medical evacuation group said 30 cases were arriving daily and that half were dying.

Bedside Lecture

WATERVILLE, Me., Nov. 8 (AP)—A hospitalized Colby College professor conducted his class by remote control today.

Prof. Webster Chester delivered his lecture on "The Circulatory System of the Frog" into a bedside telephone at Thayer Hospital.

Biology students took notes as the professor's voice issued from a loudspeaker.

Dies in Room She Is Refused

Denied lodging in an Arlington st. rooming house several hours before, an unidentified woman, about 25, today was found dead in a room in the house.

Mrs. Edwina Bimbo, landlady, told police she "had no idea" how the woman entered. She refused a room because there were no vacancies.

A roomer said he saw a soldier leaving the room early this morning.

Medical Examiner Timothy injury apparently suffered in an injury apparently suffered in an accidental fall. He said she was intoxicated.

The body is at Southern Mortuary.

Walks Right Into Double Trouble

Nathan Baron, 32, of Johnson ter., Dorchester, changed his mind on at least two occasions and his wavering landed him in trouble with the law today on two "fronts."

His first shift came when he drove up to a Dorchester policeman and informed the startled officer that the car he was driving was not his. The officer found that Baron had taken the car from a Carver st., South End, parking lot, along with $51 of the lot owner's money.

Baron pleaded guilty in municipal court today to charges of larceny and using an auto without authority, and Judge Elias Shamon imposed an 18 months' suspended jail term.

Baron's second change of mind came to light when Probation Officer Hyman Manevitch testified that Baron had married a Roxbury woman without troubling to sever the bonds of his first marriage.

His first wife, Frances, mother of two children, told Judge Shamon she was "through with him and intended to get a divorce."

Manevitch said Baron was married to Annette Semon of Roxbury eight months ago.

Baron was then arrested on a polygamy warrant issued in Roxbury court.

In Roxbury court, he pleaded guilty to the polygamy charge and Judge Samuel Eisenstadt imposed a 9-month jail sentence. He appealed and was held in $2000.

4 Ships Bring 5070 Vets, 351 From N. E.

Four more transports from Europe, carrying 5070 veterans, including 351 from New England, docked here today after bucking high winds and stormy seas which were in such contrast to Boston's balmy day the soldiers cheered, "Summertime!"

Aboard the transport Howard Victory, carrying 95 other New England men, was Chaplain Daniel C. DeCourcey, of Huron ave., Cambridge, who left for the wars more than three years ago. He served 39 months with the 115th Gun Battalion, Anti-Aircraft Artillery of Gen. Patton's Third Army.

For two years he was stationed in Iceland, then was sent to France, Belgium and Germany.

Chaplain DeCourcey, a graduate of St. John's Seminary, Brighton, was formerly assistant pastor of St. Peter's Lowell.

Nineteen civilians, including eight smiling Red Cross girls, came ashore from the Howard Victory.

Greater Boston men among the homecomers included Capt. Walter D. Brooks, Jr., of Blue Hill ave., Milton; PFC Frank J. Kelly of Hyde Park ave., Hyde Park; Sgt. Ronald Hiltz of Jefferson st., Newton, and PFC John J. McGuiness of Brighton turnpike, Newton Highlands — who wore five battle stars.

Putting into Commonwealth Pier were the Lincoln Victory, Thomas Marshall and Zebulon Pike, bringing a total of 3111 men.

Aboard the Zebulon Pike were 69 Japanese-American soldiers of the 232d Engineers Combat Team, Sixth Army, heroes of the fiercest fighting of the Italian campaign, who went on to distinguish themselves in Germany.

On the Lincoln Victory with 150 other New Englanders, were Lt. Sidney L. Davis of Hatherly rd., Brighton; Cpl. Arnold J. Dold of Dale st., Roxbury,. and Sgt. Richard Howes of Upland rd., Southboro.

FABULOUS FURS

A gorgeous mink coat, luxurious and elegant draped over the chair on opening night—a chic dyed black persian lamb fur cape and muff that makes its wearer the cynosure of all eyes wherever she goes — wonder if the spectaters ever guess that these and many other regal fur fashions hail from The Only Store Of Its Kind in The World? Have you been there lately? If not, you are missing something that not only makes Filene's Basement famous for section the rendezvous of those who seek value, but the shopping place of women of wealth and fashion exponents who seek fashion regardless of price. Furs, like everything else offered for sale in this unique store must be genuine bargains and it's not a mathematical problem to figure that when you sell furs for cash only, they must be irresistible value, priced so low the customer immediately knows it's foolhardy NOT to invest. Wouldn't you say a $3200 precious mink fur coat at $1450—a $1650 elegant Russian Broadtail fur coat for $695—a $2500 genuine Russian Sable hip length fur jacket for $895 and a $3250 choice sable dyed Baum Marten fur jacket at $895 (plus tax) were not only unusual, but the most amazing values? All these and many others from an exclusive designing furrier and noted retail store stocks sold recently here in a single day. And—if we should just mention the names of some of the notables who came, saw and went out the proudest possessors of these fabulous fur fashions, it would be manifest evidence that in many cases Filene Basement bargains are as distinguished as the distinguished clientele they attract. For luxury items UN-luxuriously priced such as fabulous findings in furs—it's Filene's Basement.

Million for New Hosiery Plant

Plans for a new million-dollar plant with air conditioning and fluorescent lighting to be added to its present buildings in Northampton were announced today by the Propper-McCallum Hosiery Co. to demonstrate again its 62-year-old faith in New England.

"This company believes in New England," the announcement by President Revell McCallum said, "and feels that with this modern plant, plus its fine experienced labor and personnel, it can retain the highest place in the quality field."

U. S. Allots More Food to Europe

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—This country has allocated liberated areas of Europe and French North Africa about 50 per cent more food for the October-December period than in the previous quarters.

Agriculture Secretary Anderson said there will be ample supplies to keep home consumption at present levels. Although meat supplies are improving, it may not be possible to end meat rationing until after December.

Anderson said rationing of butter, margarine, lard and shortening may have to be continued the first six months of 1946.

He sees little hope for material improvement in sugar supplies before 1947.

Mousometer

PEABODY, Nov. 8 (AP)—The motor sputtered and the automobile lurched, so the driver finally stopped in Peabody sq., after several blocks of hit-or-miss riding, to see what was wrong under the hood.

Atomic Race Means World Suicide, Educator Declares

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (AP)—Robert Maynard Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, declared today an armament race in atomic weapons "can lead only to the extermination of mankind."

"Atomic energy can, on the other hand, be used to usher in a new day of peace and plenty, with a degree of leisure for all the peoples of the world of which we have never dreamed," Hutchins said in his annual report.

"It can cure 'incurable' diseases and carry to the most backward places of the earth the means of developing material and human resources."

The educator asserted atomic energy "can give us world peace insead of world suicide only if it is controlled by an effective world organization."

"Without the atomic bomb," he said, "the prospects of civilization were dubious enough. Now we have it, they are black. No hopes can be based on so-called secrecy. There is no secret. The theory was well understood throughout the world before the war. What America has done is show the theory will work."

Tea for Deb Ushers

MRS. WILLIAM C. COX and Miss Dorothy Rackemann, co-chairmen of ushers for the Boston Morning Musicales, gave a tea at the Junior League yesterday in honor of 44 debutantes who have been chosen to usher at the concerts.

The Statler ballroom will be jammed to the doors for the opening concert next Wednesday at which Patrice Munsel, youngest star of the Metropolitan Opera, will be guest artist. On hand to greet the youthful ushers were Mrs. John W. Myers and Mrs. H. Parker Whittington, co-chairmen of the series and Mrs. Wm. Emerson Barrett, chairman of advertising.

Sarah Ann Foster

Mrs. J. Carter Inches, Jean MacHale and Virginia Palfrey, head ushers, were also present and among the debs enjoying tea and cakes after the meeting were Mary Kay Arnold, Nancy Harte, Joan Ray, who came up from Connecticut College for the affair; Margareta Backer, Vickie Henderson, Nancy Richmond, Diana Beebe, Sally Higginson, Molly Rudd, Joan Blake, Patricia Hobbs, Cynthia Rugg, Gloria Brown, Dorothy Hovey, Kay Salt, Mary Callan, Augusta Howes, Margaret Santry, Rosemarie Caulfield in a striking bittersweet wool suit, Jackie Laneres and Joan Tenney.

Also Janet Cook, Jean Law, Joan Whitney, Mary Clark, Gertrude Lanman, Judy Tingley-Foor, Joan Danner, Nancy Leonard, Marilyn Wilcox, Ann Edgerley, Kay MacDuffie, Carla Winsor, Rose Marie Forde, Cathie Martinez, Charlotte Worthen, Sarah Ann Foster, Connie Minot, Florence Gallup, Katharine Montgomery, Joan Hanson, Beth Harding, Meredith Pettit and Carol Prince.

A GAY foursome dancing at the Copley Plaza Oval Room the other evening included blonde and vivacious Barbara Hale and her Cambridge sister post deb, Eustacia Purves, with their respective fiances, Lewis Hamilton Clark and Richard Grandin. Barbie wore a large white orchid on her black and blue crepe. Stacia's black was also brightened with orchids.

Blonde Mrs. Charles Curran, a choker of seed pearls at the high neck of her slim black gown and a taffeta bowed half hat on her lovely hair, dined in a foursome with Charlie and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Carven. Mrs. Carven chose a sleek gun metal satin tunic dress contrasted by an orchid corsage and pink and black feathered fez.

BLUE CROSS

pays a hospital bill every 18 seconds

1 out of every 3 in Massachusetts is protected when illness strikes

ARE YOU A MEMBER?

NEARLY every time your clock ticks, someone goes to the hospital. And every 18 seconds, Blue Cross pays a hospital for one of its members.

Blue Cross is a low-cost, non-profit, voluntary plan for protection against hospital bills. For a few cents a day, it pays the hospital for services to the entire family.

Saves you money

Chances are one to ten that you will go to the hospital within a year. Blue Cross spreads your risk over a large number of people and assumes financial obligations no one person can afford to assume.

Blue Cross is the only plan endorsed by leading hospitals. Being non-profit, it gives you more for your money.

Avoid dangerous delay

Most illnesses arise too suddenly to allow adequate planning for hospital expense. As a result, nine out of ten people have trouble paying hospital bills. Blue Cross members simply present their card at the hospital . . . the hospital sends the bill direct to Blue Cross and Blue Cross pays the hospital.

The chances are 1 to 10 that you will go to the hospital within a year!

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acid and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MEN, WOMEN OVER 40 RUN DOWN, LISTLESS?

GET NEW PEP, VIM

END THAT TIRED FEELING

Why be tired, nervous, old at 40 just because your body is not getting a sufficient daily amount of Iron, Iodine and Thiamine. Many people have that "run down" feeling and never realize that an extra supply of these much needed elements may be just what they need. Check up on yourself now! Do you have all the energy and endurance you want or are you one of those who may need a little extra help by adding Iron, Iodine and Thiamine to your diet?

OLD AT 40-50-60?

Old age arrives when the body no longer builds new cells to replace old cells as fast as they wear out. Iron and Iodine, important cell building factors, help fight the onset of OLD AGE.

Nervous, Irritable?

Are "ragged," jumpy nerves making you irritable, cross and out of sorts with yourself? High tension and nervousness may be due to a deficiency of Thiamine and Iodine. Don't overlook these factors when your "nerves" are on edge.

PALE, LISTLESS?

Radiant, robust, energetic health that makes life really worth while is priceless. If you are pale, listless, and all in, an added supply of Iron, Iodine and Thiamine may be just what you need.

WEAK, TIRED?

A mineral starved body, a body starved for Iron and Iodine weakens quickly and tires easily. You must get enough Iron and Iodine for strength with Vim, Pep and Vitality.

IRON-IODINE THIAMINE

Hiran is a fine combination of Iron and Iodine plus Thiamine that helps many people to enjoy better health as it helps everyone or guards against a deficiency of these important essentials. No matter what your work may be, you must get enough Iron or you cannot have normal strength, energy and endurance.

HIRAN TABLETS—Large Economy Size—$2.50

TEST WITHOUT RISK: Use 2 of the tablets, according to directions, in a bottle of Hiran. If you do not feel better generally, with more energy and vitality, this test is without cost . . . your money will be refunded.

This Is My Story ★ ★ By Gen. Jonathan Wainwright

(Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

(In Chapter 29 of his remarkable account of his trials as a captive of the Japs, Gen. Wainwright today tells of his trip from Manila to Karenko, dread Formosan prison camp.)

Maj. Gen. Edward P. King and I were taken to a cabin on the boat deck of the Jap ship which lay at Manila that Aug. 11, 1942, and were told we must not leave the room during the trip. It was a comfortable place and for a time I believed the Jap general might well be telling me the truth when he intimated that happier days lay ahead of us.

I soon found out, however, that King and I were the only Americans on the ship who were treated as something more than cattle. All others were jammed in the hold in scandalous style.

They slept on two long wooden shelves extending six feet out from the walls and arranged one over the other. Each man was granted 2½ feet of space on the shelves, with no bed clothing and the most primitive toilet arrangements.

The ship lay all that night beside Pier 7, then pulled out and anchored just outside the breakwater, where she waited until 3 p. m. before moving again. It was obvious that the Jap skipper was afraid to get under way much before dark because of American submarines operating off the Philippines.

On Aug. 14, 1942, at the end of a two-day voyage, we arrived outside the breakwater of the almost completely land-locked harbor at Takao, on the west coast of Formosa. The hills along the shoreline had been cut through by a canal and apparently what was now the harbor had been lowlying ground of a swamp area which had been dredged. There were no docks in the harbor, which was, indeed, a striking one.

Our ship came in through the canal and anchored just off the stern of the old President Harrison, of the President lines. The Japs had seized this fine American liner in the early days of the war after it went aground while trying to escape, on one of the small islands below Formosa.

We stayed aboard our ship until afternoon, when we were all lined up and submitted to a distressing physical examination to guard against our carrying any communicable diseases into their fair land. Much of the examination centered about the rectum.

But it was done at last, and we were put in little boats and transferred to a small coastwise steamer anchored near by.

My cabin-traveling ended there, and so did King's. We were herded below decks into the forward hold with 30 others. The 150 others in our party were similarly jammed into another hold. The hatches were immediately battened down and the temperature in the holds rose to far over 100 degrees. At dusk we were ordered to close the portholes and draw the blackout curtains, which made our black holes that much more suffocating.

Ours was alive with bedbugs.

Forced to Pose

The next morning I was led out on the ship's deck and, over my protests, made to pose for a Jap artist. He was doing a painting of my surrender to Homma. It was to go to the Imperial Palace in Tokyo when completed. It was an ambitious affair, for at Manila I had been forced to seat myself at a table—formerly the University Club's main dining table—and arrange Beebe, Pugh, Dooley and Carroll about me, as we had been on the day we met Homma. Many photographs of us had been taken that day at Manila, to help the artist now making sketches of my face.

We reached Karenko at noon, and the remaining hope the Jap general had given me just about dissolved when I looked at the hot, barren and dirty little harbor.

We waited two steaming hours before being allowed to leave that evil little ship, then were roughly ordered off the boat, checked and counted.

We picked up our luggage, were formed into a column and marched through the city. At 3 p. m. we arrived at our new prison camp, "beautiful" Karenko. It was a large square of about 150 yards formed by barbed wire. Within the boundaries were a dozen or so buildings, the largest of which was a two-story barracks, probably built originally for a battalion of Jap troops. It was rather good-looking, with a coating of gray cement and a black tile roof, as is the custom in Formosa.

Didn't Wait Long

Behind it lay the toilets. On the barracks' back porch were troughs and water spigots for washing. In front lay a grassy parade ground, and across it, about 100 yards away, were kitchens and a bathhouse which consisted of a tank 12 feet in diameter and waist-deep. Steps led up a small rise at the rear of the grounds to two administration buildings.

They lined us up in front of the barracks and someone shouted at us to surrender all our hand luggage. When the soldier came to me I tried to keep my toilet articles, but he pulled them away.

I looked around with a sinking sensation. This was definitely going to be worse. A Jap officer strode up to one of my men, ripped open his luggage and, with a look of triumph, extracted a roll of toilet paper. He had the manner of a man who has discovered secret papers.

Slowly he began to unwrap the roll, peering first at one side of each sheet and then at the other. He continued to unroll the paper, holding it up to the light occasionally, until yards and yards of it were scattered around his feet. Then in disgust he threw the rest of it away and walked to the next officer.

Eventually he unearthed a first-aid packet, of the type which must be kept hermetically sealed to protect its contents. The officer looked it over carefully and then insisted by gestures that it be opened.

Precious Packet

The American explained through an interperter that the package had been sealed at the factory, contained nothing of a military nature and would be ruined if opened. We had so few medical supplies, and so little hope of getting any from the Japs, that the little packet was an imoprtant part of our equipment.

But it had to be opened. When the Jap saw its contents he threw the precious stuff away.

After every item of baggage had been taken from us we were moved to the center of the grounds: There we were forced to strip down to our shorts—if any. We stood like human scarecrows while Jap inspectors slowly went through each bundle of clothing, searching pockets, seams and linings.

In time our clothes were given back to us, but our shoes were kept. We were given wooden Jap clogs, none of them a proper fit.

The Karenko barracks' lower floor consisted of two big squad rooms and a number of smaller ones apparently designed as offices and storerooms. The upper floor held six squad rooms. Jap bunks, too short for any American of average height, were placed side by side along the walls of most of the upstairs rooms. They were made of metal slats, crisscrossed, covered with a short, hard mattress of rice straw. The pillows were 12-inch by 6-inch sacks of rice.

Upon our arrival inside the barracks we were divided into squads and each squad was given a certain area of the floor space upstairs and down. Gen. King and I were given a small room at one end of the building and the rest of our group were put in two small adjacent squad rooms.

The first duty of each squad was to organize several members to go to the kitchen, about 100 yards away, and bring back our dinner. While my group was gone I discovered, as did the others, that we would be required to eat with chopsticks out of Jap army mess bowls. Our own mess kits, knives, forks and spoons would not be returned until our baggage had been more thoroughly inspected.

Used Chopsticks

The mess bowls were mainly of white china, marked with the blue stars that are standard on all Jap army equipment. There were four bowls for each man—the largest being a soup bowl, a slightly smaller and flatter one (rarely used) called a vegetable bowl, a still smaller one for rice and a very small one for tea.

Our carriers returned about 7 p. m. with a bucket of rice and a bucket of watery vegetable soup and, famished as we were, we set to work on the rice with our chopsticks. I was bad at this and never got much better.

An hour later we were ordered out for rollcall—a routine which was to continue through the rest of my captivity—and when we were all accounted for we were given two heavy blankets and two light ones and told to go to bed. For many it meant climbing in over the bottom of the hard bunks, for there was no other way to approach them.

We lay there in the dark, silent without thoughts, all of us filled with the knowlege that what we had considered harsh treatment in the past would be almost kind, compared to what was in store for us.

WAY TO AVERT STRIKES

THE PLAIN and irrefutable fact that the way to prevent strikes in the United States will ultimately be found in the field of impartial COMPULSORY ARBITRATION is steadily gaining acceptance in the country.

It has always been supported by the Hearst newspapers.

Now it is beginning to have acceptance in the ranks of responsible labor leadership.

Impressive evidence of this acceptance is in the recent speech by Donald R. Richberg, able and successful legal representative of various labor unions in many important court actions, before the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Mr. Richberg was co-author of the Railway Labor Act. This measure has virtually abolished strikes in the American railroad industry and is the longest step toward permanent labor-management peace ever taken in the United States.

He therefore speaks with the highest authority for organized labor in the nation.

And this is what he said in Chicago:

"The way to prevent strikes is to MAKE THEM UNJUSTIFIABLE AND UNNECESSARY, by a law which will ESTABLISH AND REQUIRE THE USE OF PROCESSES OF JUSTICE for the settlement of industrial disputes."

While Mr. Richberg stops short of a proposal to OUTLAW all strikes, he insists that:

"We can end by law all excuses for sudden and ARBITRARY strikes.

"We can make sure that before any strike can be lawfully called there will be ample opportunity for a peaceful settlement and full public information as to the issues which create a dispute."

Under such a law, Mr. Richberg believes, "a vast majority of disputes will be SETTLED PEACEFULLY."

Under it, he urges, "if a strike is threatened for an unlawful purpose, such a strike can be prevented or speedily broken by CRIMINAL PROSECUTION."

In its operation, he says, "public officials will be able to determine whether the public injury from a stoppage of production will be so great and so intolerable that some form of GOVERNMENT COMPULSION must be used to settle the controvery without a strike."

Compulsory arbitration is the sensible and practicable remedy for this dangerous situation, as well as the sound and patriotic corrective of it.

The alternative to compulsory arbitration, as Mr. Richberg so well says, is continued growth of an evil "which has been used to destroy governments in other nations and has slapped its ugly threat across our faces several times in recent months."

BLOW TO DECEIT

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S famous quotation concerning the impossibility of fooling all the people all the time was amply sustained in Tuesday's Boston election.

On the ballot appeared this extremely ambiguous question:

"Shall an act passed by the General Court in the current year, entitled: 'An Act Establishing the Compensation of the Members of the City Council of the City of Boston,' be approved?"

If enough people voted "yes" the members of the Council would have had their salaries upped from $2000 to $3500.

And it has always been politically axiomatic that the people always vote "yes," especially when they do not understand an inquiry.

But the people recorded a powerfully overwhelming "NO" and confounded the politicians and defeated the pay-boost plan.

Perhaps the gentlemen who want more money would have fared better if they had been less artful and simply asked:

"Shall City Council salaries be raised to $3500?"

Nobody relishes trickery or anything that smacks of it, and that is particularly true of the man alone with his conscience in the voting booth.

AM ASKED to name some celebrated vegetarians noted for both brilliancy of mind and longevity. Well, there is George Bernard Shaw, who recently celebrated his 89th birthday. Other famous vegetarians were Tolstoy, Voltaire, Isaac Newton, Goethe and Tennyson. All of these men lived to be 80 years of age or more. William Penn was also a vegetarian, but he died when 74. This sounds like a terrific boost for the vegetarian idea. However, I could probably name six times as many brilliant meat eaters who lived to a ripe old age.

That's a lot of money. Still it shows what could be done with twenty-five billion dollars. Keep this in mind when you read about our war expenditures, or the number of billions of dollars we are asked to give for European relief. Or the billions of dollars we loaned to other countries and will never get back.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Theodore Ornstein, Mayor of Long Beach, N. Y., recently performed a noble public service which I call to the attention of other executives having such authority and to my fellow-citizens for reference to the Department of Indignation.

Westbrook Pegler

This wise public official abolished the local examining board of plumbers "as a step to break the construction monopoly which could seriously affect postwar building operations."

His Honor's announcement included some rather grimy remarks about his own local board which, not knowing the facts, I must deny myself the pleasure of endorsing. But if it be taken as a general condemnation of an evil condition contrived by plumbing contractors almost everywhere, in a conspiracy against the people, I can say that, by independent inquiry some time ago, I discovered facts which corroborate him thoroughly.

This, my peers, is a racket by means of which countless villages and towns are barricaded against competitive bidding on plumbing jobs and are placed at the mercy of local monopolists who thus are authorized by law to exclude rivals.

It is done by means of a standard ordinance which sets up the local contractors as examiners to pass on the qualifications of other men in the same trade, as good as themselves if not better, who live and operate in other communities in the same States or counties.

★ ★ ★

FOR ILLUSTRATION, let us assume there is a town of 5000 with five resident plumbing contractors. The town council adopts an ordinance known as a public health measure, creating an examining board and a license fee of $1000 for newcomers.

Those already on the ground are exempt, being granted free licenses before the enactment of the fee provision, and three of the local five constitute the board.

They rotate the board memberships among themselves and receive pay.

The local ordinance then further provides that all outsiders, including even a qualified man from the next village or town, who shall undertake to mend a leaky tap or install a sink shall first be required to pass written examinations prepared by men with a suspiciously obvious motive to flunk them and exclude this competition.

It may be conceded that the license fee may be less than $1000 in some cases, with the stipulation, however, that it may be even more.

A case is on file in which it was alleged that an outside plumber who was flunked by the local examining board of monopolists was then hired by one of the examiners to handle a contract in that examiner's name and under his license at a price to the victimized home-builder so high that he was able to pay the monopolist 51 per cent of the profits and still make money for himself.

★ ★ ★

THESE ORDINANCES usually are sneaked through in the dark of the moon by collusion between the local plumbers and the members of the public council.

Being confirmed now in their monopoly with legal authority to repel all rivals, the five local operators arrange to distribute the work among themselves by collusive bids and the cost of installation in new homes and apartment buildings is controlled only by their conscience.

It has been proposed and, I believe, enacted in some communities that a similar setup be created by law for the benefit of the electrical contractors, again in the guise of a measure of public safety, to reduce the fire hazard, although electricians, too, must qualify by test in wider jurisdictions.

It would be equally reasonable to establish the same conditions to protect a monopoly of the local clergy, the grocers or the newspaper publishers. No reason why plumbing contractors should be so favored has ever been advanced except the ground of public health which is disposed of by the fact that a man licensed by the state, on proof of his ability, as every such practitioner should be, must be assumed to be competent everywhere in that state.

★ ★ ★

THIS, BE IT NOTED, is an inspection ordinance. Plumbing and electrical work should be inspected and, in most localities, is inspected by health authorities in the case of plumbing and the fire insurance companies and fire department inspectors in the case of wiring.

The ordinance here discussed is simply a means of permitting entrenched local contractors to Balkanize their towns and prey upon their neighbors.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8—Joan Crawford has made her decision. After what "Mildred Pierce" did, particularly at the box office, she will return to the Warner fold for her next picture, "Obsessed" which will be made by the winning combination of Warners, Crawford and producer Jerry Wald. This leaves a bid from Paramount and another from M-G-M going begging, at least until the new film is completed.

Joan Crawford

Joan, who is still in New York, OK'd the script of "Obsessed" over the telephone and heard that Kurt Bernhardt would be the director. But there's still more news—David Niven is being sought for the male lead—and cables have already gone to him in England, and to his contract boss, Sam Goldwyn, in New York. The story of "Obsessed" is being kept a secret but hear tell it is another adult woman-in-trouble-in-love opus along the general lines of "Mildred-you-know-who."

★ ★ ★

FRANCHOT TONE and John Garfield caught the same train out of Los Angeles for New York yesterday—and that was no accident. These two alumni of the Group Theater in New York are negotiating a deal to finance the play "Father Was President," by Melvin Wald and Walter Doniger, which was selected as the best play written by a service man in 1945. It's based on the life of Theodore Roosevelt and the boys—I mean Franchot and Johnny—are particularly anxious to tie up the movie rights as well as get it launched on Broadway.

★ ★ ★

KETTIE FRINGS, who wrote "God's Front Porch" and "Hold Back the Dawn," is asking $50,000 for her latest original, "I Know You"—and that isn't bad for a girl who just a few years ago was writing fan magazine stories for $50 or thereabouts. What's more she'll probably get the 50 grand, for M-G-M in particular is interested in her story for Robert Montgomery. Bob's definitely anxious to get away from war themes—and this concerns a girl and a man who practice blackmail on a steamship and get themselves involved in a murder.

★ ★ ★

I wouldn't be knowing whether the Bill Williams-Barbara Hale twosome started out as a studio publicity romance or not—but it is sure becoming the real thing. These two youngsters, being consistently "built" by RKO, have it bad—and that's good where they are concerned. Well, they can keep Cupid flourishing right on the set for they are to be co-starred in a modern romantic comedy, "A Likely Story." Incidentally, this will be the first time Bill will not play a serviceman. He's alternately been a soldier, a sailor and a marine in his last three—but this time he plays a bank clerk from Omaha who goes to New York and gets involved with a bunch of racketeers—and a gal.

★ ★ ★

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Didn't we tell you the Kathryn Grayson-John Shelton rift would never reach the divorce courts? Sure enough, they have kissed and made up for the steenth time and are telling friends they are on a second honeymoon. What do they mean "second?" They've parted and reconciled at least five times. And now I have a word of advice to these two kids: try to keep your set domestic spat quiet without rushing into print about it. All married couples have temporary quarrels and patch them up without benefit of fireworks. Remember that the next time you start to blow off steam—for this whole thing is becoming silly and undignified.

★ ★ ★

GOT A KICK from the fan who wrote me about the sneak preview of "Young Widow." "Jane Russell's first scene in the picture shows her wearing a black satin bathing suit," writes my amateur reviewer, "and believe me, Louella, that was a four-whistle scene if I ever saw one. Every male in the house gave her the 'wolf salute!'" Not bad for a girl who hasn't been on the screen since "The Outlaw" over two years ago. Apparently, she is still, er—recognizable!

★ ★ ★

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: David Niven and his wife welcomed a nine-pound boy in London. Here's the wire David sent to Sam Goldwyn: "We have just produced another feature player for your studio, a huge boy weighing nearly nine pounds. Please prepare contract accordingly."

★ ★ ★

BETTY HUTTON and Ted Briskin get in from Chicago Monday; the last time Bob Young became the father of a daughter Eddie Cantor sent him a wire which merely said "Ha-ha." This time, as soon as his new daughter arrived, Bob wired Eddie: "Am awaiting your telegram but it had better be original": Carlos Ramirez and Olga San Juan in a tres romantic mood over a plate of spaghetti at Vesuvio; the only two stags at Andy Russell's house-warming were John Hodiak and Jimmy Durante. I suppose all the gals gazed rapturously at Hodiak while Jimmy gazed rapturously at the gals; Jeanne Crain and Kurt Kreuger were dating at the Colony House; you think you are having trouble finding a place to live? Red Skelton owns a 37-unit apartment house in Hollywood but he had to move bag and baggage into the Beverly Hills Hotel because he and the bride can't get one of his own apartments.

DARRYL ZANUCK tossed a luncheon for Gen. Robert McClure, chief of psychological warfare in Occupied Germany, at the 20th Commissary Tuesday; the girl Jack Dempsey is seeing most often in the East is Athalia Ponselle, a New York model. But he still long-distances Estelle Taylor to see his kids in Hollywood weren't lonesome; wonderful news that Dr. Francis Griffin, Irene Dunne's husband, is well enough to leave the hospital. Irene has turned the library of their Holmby Hills home into a ground floor apartment until the doctor is well enough to be up and around. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

BEFORE THE HIGHLY profitable concession of furnishing liquor, food and programs at a New England racetrack is conveyed from its present holder to a politically-favored rival, the whole business will be fought out in the courts . . . The key to the situation may rest in the award of a liquor license to the present owner of the concession . . . And Tuesday's election may prove the factor "X" in the situation, notwithstanding the fact that the ABC is under state control . . . City Councilor William F. "Hiya" Hurley (re-elected in Ward 8, unopposed) is slated for reappointment by Gov. Tobin to the ABC commission, incidentally.

* * *

HENRY BRENNAN, the banker, is the leading candidate—whether he knows it or not—for city treasurer of Boston, and the fact that he and the late John J. Curley, former city treasurer, were true friends is not going to do Mr. Brennan any harm . . . In fact, Mayor-elect Curley is said to be eager to let a few major appointments reflect the love he held for his lamented brother, whose loss will be felt deeply around City Hall.

* * *

WITH THE CURLEY sweep, it should be noted, promoters of a new dog track in Massachusetts switched their intentions from Suffolk County (where the signature of Mayor-elect Curley would be needed for a permit) to a county in the northwest part of the state . . . Gov. Tobin and his racing commission exercise the control over racing permits, but the approval of a county's commissioners or a town's selectmen is required first to sanction a racing license . . . In Boston, the city councilors are the equivalent of county commissioners in okaying a permit within the city's limits.

* * *

BLANKETING any and all moves toward a new race track, dog or horse, in Massachusetts, is the proviso in the racing regulations that a new track must be situated 50 miles from one established already . . . An acquiescent former racing commission well protected its friends, the dog track interests, by setting up the so-called "distance" regulations.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The good-looking and you-can't-tell-one-from-the-other Darrell Twins, Jerry and Lee, are threatening Tanya's record as the long-run stars of a Boston cocktail lounge . . . Tanya made the long-run grade at the Music Box, and the Darrell girls are in the Latin Quarter's cocktail lounge, with a six months' run already to their credit . . . Walter Winchell's discovery that the sun is a true cure for sinus can be supported by this department. But you must keep taking the cure (unfortunately for a Bostonian) . . . Dick La Marr, the New York theatrical agent who derives from a famous Boston trade family (carpets) is in town.

WHEN THE STORY of the war is written in full, the part played by Corn. Sullivan will be shown as prominent . . . He was very much present in all important invasions, from North Africa to Manila Bay, including Sicily and Normandy . . . Playwright Sherwood recalled a meeting with the late FDR at a time when an aerial camera study of the bottom Manila Bay was shown to the lamented President . . . Nearly 400 Japanese ships were found to be lying in the silt of the Philippine harbor . . . The President was so impressed that he requested the original negatives of the review of the wreckage scored by our ships and planes, and ordered the set to be sent to Hyde Park as items in the memorial library which he later bequeathed to his country.

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Mr. Harry Wismer, the celebrated sports broadcaster, invited me to squat with him in the radio coop at Griffith Stadium last Sunday while he described the football contest between the Washington Redskins and the Chicago Cardinals for 180 billion—I think that the figure Mr. Wismer gave me—palpitating listeners.

The game, as you may have heard, was quite exciting in its final moments because the Redskins, it seems, do not believe in crowding issues. They waited until only 24 seconds were left to play before winning the event.

Personally, I think this smacks of procrastination and should not be encouraged. Also, I do not think it can be good for the patrons' nerves.

It was certainly unnerving to George Preston Marshall, owner of the Redskins. He emerged from the park a jibbering wreck. However, I would not be surprised if he forbids any recurrence of this in future, because his missus, the beautiful Corinne Griffith, of the movies, informed me personally that she could not stand much of same—and I hear on competent authority, that Mr. Marshall does not go contrary to the wishes of his missus, if he knows what's good for him.

Mr. Wismer got a bit excited, too, although he is known as a man of steel, and almost certainly would have bounced around in the radio coop, except that it is not constructed for bouncing. In fact, it is practically a cramped torture chamber. The architect who designed it must have been under the impression that all sportscasters are Igorotte pygmies.

Mr. Wismer is certainly no pygmy and he is lucky he had no ring through his nose because it would have banged against both sides of the coop. But I will swear that he managed to bounce without moving, which is a trick peculiarly his own.

The Washington team kept getting penalized for unnecessary roughness, although I could not detect even a simple case of mayhem. There wasn't so much as a single eyeball lying on the greensward and all the players came off the field with the same number of arms and legs.

Mr. Wismer seemed to feel strongly about the refereeing. On one occasion, when the play was called back for unnecessary roughness, Mr. Wismer said—very sarcastically—into the microphone:

"I guess the Washington ball-carrier was running too hard!"

* * *

MR. WISMER, who incidentally received an award in New York last night as the year's outstanding sportscaster, made the sad error of turning over the microphone over to me for a minute. I started to jabber something about why didn't the officials penalize the radio coop for unnecessary roughness to my person, but the play got so exciting right then I trailed off, probably leaving Mr. Wismer's audience quite baffled.

* * *

On the way out of the park I encountered Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy. I asked him if he would care to deliver an opinion on the unnecessary roughness as seen by the referees.

Mr. Justice Murphy mopped his brow on a writ of certiorari and spake as follows:

"I desire it definitely understood I am speaking now as a plain, ordinary citizen, because I do not wish to get the United States Supreme Court involved in any argument over whether one football player should clip another in the kisser. The Supreme Court must be maintained in dignity and something tells me that is not what you have in mind.

"However, I will say—a layman's opinion, of course—that the unnecessary roughness today did not seem unnecessarily rough. The thing to do in a football game, as in war, is win, and it is often necessary to resort to somewhat ungentle practices.

"Furthermore, those players were not out there trying to win a peppermint stick for good conduct and unfailing courtesy. They were trying to defeat their opponents. I think we might go into this matter more fully.

"If we accept the tenets of the referees, there have been many instances of unnecessary roughness in history. Cromwell might have been said to have been unnecessarily rough in the beheading of Charles I, but he probably thought it was the thing to do.

"Luis Angel Firpo, known as the Wild Bull of the Pampas, was certainly guilty of unnecessary roughness when he knocked Jack Dempsey out of the ring in the first round of their epic fight in New York on Sept. 14, 1923. In fact, he hit Dempsey so hard he knocked him right into the lap of the late Hype Igoe, who was present only to report the event and not catch flying prize fighters.

"But I am sure Mr. Firpo always regretted not having hit Mr. Dempsey harder. The latter climbed back in the ring and defeated Mr. Firpo decisively in the second round.

"And, if we wish to carry the debate one step further, let me ask you this:

"Don't you think maybe we were guilty of unnecessary roughness when we dropped the atom bomb on Hiroshima?"

Special Creams Create Dainty Hands

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

LET'S LOOK at your hands. They're good hands. They've done more than their share of work these past five years . . . turning out wartime necessities, washing dishes in canteens, perhaps, driving trucks, handling machines, cultivating victory gardens, doing the household chores. Now they need care.

HANDS that have been carrying their share of the burden during these war years are likely to show the ravages of their toil with discolorations. But if a gal doesn't want time to hang heavily on her hands . . . when she'd rather be in somebody's arms . . . she should use a perfectly grand bleaching cream that will help restore hands to soft, feminine whiteness. And, for lovely hands to justify the scads of bracelets . . . Dame Fashion's new wrinkle for smartness . . . there is a rich emollient cream to make them utterly feminine and fine.

For, like yardsticks of your age and grooming . . . your hands are a give-away. More so now than ever . . . because jewelry has taken to the wrists like crumpets to tea. But, unless those paws are "purty" . . . there's no use of being fashion-wise and abreast of the current trends and encircling the arms with tintillating, dangling bangles.

That your hands should be graced with the radiance and sparkle of bracelets prompts us to devote this discourse to helping you nuture your hands back to the soft, white, lovely young beauty that is their heritage. Actually, attractive hands are easy to come by . . . and they are an asset without which you and you and you cannot afford to make a public appearance. Hands speak for you . . . graceful hands tell of a charming, gracious woman . . . well-groomed hands tell of a beautifully-dressed, meticulous woman . . . white hands tell of an utterly feminine one.

So to work a little every day towards keeping hands smooth and lovely to look at and to touch. Just a few minutes at night will repay handsome dividends . . . especially when you massage the hands that wear the rings or the gloves with a hand cream so rich in emollients the most stubborn cases must respond . . . This cream will help your hands to a softer, whiter appearance

WRINKLES VANISH

And if your hands have any obstinate wrinkles . . . especially on the fingers and knuckles . . . press a little more generous application into these areas . . . well and purposefully, smoothing them out as though with an iron. Then watch the lubricating agent of this cream go to work in relegating these wrinkles into oblivion.

If you have problem hands with brown spots and other discolorations . . . little things that can be so annoying, however . . . a traditionally fine cosmetic house which sponsors the hand cream . . . has also devised a bleaching cream that should be massaged and left on for half an hour, if possible. One application won't be sufficient, we dare say . . . but consistent care will bring results.

For the name of these two wonderful hand preparations, phone Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fashion

TUNIC COATS have staged a strong revival for evening wear this season . . . what with the mad rush to dress up and doll up at the slightest provocation. This New York fashion is of multicolored brocade on a white ground in a graceful all-over spray pattern. And don't overlook the pouch bag of matching material. The pair constitute a fetching feminine twosome for those glad p. m. hours—R. M.

Successful Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

NOT LONG AGO I asked correspondents who had made a go of successful marriage to write me about it. Some of the letters have been very helpful. Take this one: "Dear Miss Fairfax:

"The great secret of marriage is to understand your husband. He's flesh and blood just like you are, and no Sphinx. I've never given my husband a chance to get that old wheeze off to some other woman 'My wife doesn't understand me.'

"When I have friends at our house, I make sure my husband likes them. Even if he dislikes people for no good reason, I don't have them around when he's there. Suppose he doesn't like your Aunt Hattie, have her in to lunch or meet her downtown. Don't jam Aunt Hattie down his throat.

MAKE MEALS ATTRACTIVE

"It's the same with food. And food comes right after love, sometimes even before it in the happy home. Don't give him spinach because you think it's good for him, if he dislikes spinach.

"Put the food on the table as attractively as possible. A sprig or two of parsley tends to make a dish appealing. Have your table appointments immaculate. You needn't tell him you bought the pie like his mother used to make, at the bakery. Canned food is useful, but don't feed him exclusively out of cans.

"After six years of marriage, I've never been afraid of 'the other woman,' nor do I think the recording angel will judge us severely for the white lies of married life—his and mine. When he told me that the attractive blonde my dearest friend informed me she saw him lunching with downtown was his Cousin Delia, I swallowed it. But a few days later I had lunch with a purely apocryphal Cousin Bill, came home with a corsage which I purchased myself.

SHOULD HAVE FAMILIES

"Babies are the great home savers, and parents, unless there is some valid reason, should have families, as many as they can take care of and educate. Unless a man is weak in the head—alas some of them are—the 'other woman' will not get him away permanently from the little toddler who calls him 'Daddy' and bears his name.

"And finally, common-sense in marriage, as in everything else, goes a long way to save the ship."

Give Furs Best of Care

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE greatest fur experts in America have a few pointers to give you girls about how to take care of that fur coat. They claim it ought to last 10 years if it's good quality; that is, if you do your part.

First of all keep your coat away from heat. Don't hang it in a warm closet unless there is provision for enough humidity to keep the fur in good condition. Dryness and heat are very bad for furs. If your fur gets wet let it dry in ordinary room temperature. Never put it near a radiator or heat of any kind.

The woman who had a $20,000 chinchilla coat did this, and the next morning the coat was ruined beyond repair. Remember friction wears out fur so don't comb your furs, or let bags or jewelry or your collar rub against it, and don't sit on your coat for long periods either. A little care will be worth a lot of money.

Public to See Atom Bomb Film

Army films of the devastation wrought by atomic bombs on Japanese cities will be shown the public at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Saturday, Sunday and Monday as one of the features of the wartime pageant, "Victory in Science" sponsored by the Massachusetts War Finance Committee.

The entire history of the race for atomic supremacy by warring nations is shown in full color, and a remarkable collection of stills shows bomb damage.

Tickets to the science show are available to buyers of Victory Bonds at Boston banks and trust companies and at stores belonging to the Boston Retail Trade Board.

Meanwhile, another million dollars in E bonds were purchased Tuesday in Massachusetts. Total sales of these bonds are now $9,600,000 or 14.8 per cent of the $65,000,000 quota.

Total sales of bonds other than E's are $25,100,000 or 19.3 per cent of the $130,000,000 goal.

Walter Abel To Appear

Walter Abel, co-starred with Shirley Temple in the film comedy hit, "Kiss and Tell," now in its second week at both Loew's State and Orpheum Theatres, will appear in person on the State Theater stage only on next Sunday evening at 8:30.

Abel, who appears in Boston after an absence of nine years, as one of the stars of the new John Van Druten comedy "The Mermaids Singing," coming to the Wilbur for a fortnight's engagement beginning Tuesday, will speak in behalf of the current Victory Loan Drive and will be introduced to his audience by Jeff Sullivan, the house manager.

Following his talk and stage appearance the popular stage and screen star will sell bonds during the remainder of the evening from the bond booth in the lobby of Loew's State.

Tonight's Opening

"School For Brides," a comedy-farce co-starring Jack Sheehan and Helen Twelvetrees, opens tonight at the Copley Theater, following engagement of 44 weeks on the West Coast, 16 in Chicago and 31 on Broadway.

Charlestown Gift For Donahue

Tonight is to be Charlestown Night at the Colonial Theater. At the conclusion of the performance of "Oklahoma!" and in the presence of more than 700 Charlestowners Walter Donahue, their friend and neighbor and the leading man of The Theater Guild hit, will be honored at a presentation ceremony.

3d WEEK FOR CAPT. KIDD

The Charles Laughton-starring swashbuckler, "Captain Kidd," is now in its third successful week on the Old South and Tremont screens. His gaudy career in villainy has been brought to the screen in bold and brilliant fashion.

Met's New 'Voice' Grand; 'Mildred Pierce' Hit Film

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

Before going into a discussion of "Mildred Pierce," which opened yesterday at the Met, it is encumbent on your reporter to call to the attention of moviegoers another, and even more significant, opening at the same theater.

We are talking about the new sound equipment named, rather awkwardly, "The Voice of the Theater," which is now making its New England bow at the Met. The chances are very great that if it isn't pointed out, most of the movie customers won't even be aware of it . . . we Americans tend to take technological improvements for granted.

Undoubtedly, many movie patrons will find that they enjoy pictures more than they formerly did, without analyzing the fact. Musicians will be immediately aware of the difference in sound, as will actors and theater folk who take note of the technical faults of a production. This new equipment, in a word, is the greatest revolution in movie-making since the films first talked.

Now as to "Mildred Pierce," which benefits by the new sound. Here is a James M. Cain story that pulls no punches, and that brings Joan Crawford back to the screen in what is probably her greatest triumph as an actress.

You may find yourself boiling over with moral indignation, and you should, but you won't be bored with Mildred, with her spoiled, vicious daughter, or with the unpalatable characters who contribute to her story.

It is the story of a woman driven by ambition, knowing no moral code except that of getting what she wants. The fact that what she wants is not anything for herself but for a spoiled and worthless daughter makes it more tragically sordid. It is a travesty on mother love. It is a cold-blooded picture drawn from life, and the movie has done well in keeping the pitiless delineation of character . . . and lack of it . at which Cain is past master.

Crawford is terrific, and more glamorous than ever. Ann Blyth, as her daughter Veda, gives an unusually fine performance. Jack Carson, Zachary Scott and Eve Arden head the excellent supporting cast. "Mildred Pierce" won't leave you cold, we assure you.

Musical's Premiere Nov. 20

The Shubert Theater opening of "Billion Dollar Baby," the new musical featuring Mitzi Green and Joan McCracken, has been set back a day and is now set for Tuesday night, Nov. 20.

* * *

Three new works of his own will be played by Alec Templeton, pianist-composer, at his Symphony Hall recital Sunday afternoon. The new compositions are "Romance," "Minuet" (written in the style of Ravel) and "Fantasy," melodies from the opera, "Boris Godunoff," adapted for the piano for the first time.

* * *

Nine musicians will be members of the cast of "The Would-Be Gentleman," the comedy-extravaganza by Moliere which Michael Todd is producing with Bobby Clark in the title role. The music they will play, which will be heard from the stage instead of from the orchestra pit, is the original score by Jean Baptiste Lully, as specially adapted and arranged by Jerome Moross. "The Would-Be Gentleman" will open at the Wilbur Theater on Tuesday night, Nov. 27.

Boston's No.1 Sportsman Resumes Mayor's Office

By AUSTEN LAKE

BOSTON SPORTSMEN OF ALL breeds will welcome the return of James Michael Curley to the municipal throne. For Mayor Curley is a statesman who likes to win contests of all sorts, including elections and arguments, and, as the No. 1 Common People's Man, has always fingered the sporting pulse.

Austen Lake

It was no great trick during Curley's many administrations for publicity managers to tow in some blocky hayshaker through the outer grills of City Hall, past rows of waiting people and into the innner sanctum. I never grew tired of attending such tableaux and seeing the Mayor cast an appraising hen's eye over his spectacles while a velvet-footed secretary settled the delegation in chairs along the walls, saying in shushy tones that His Honor was hearing a weighty appeal about building a duck-blind off South Boston.

So for the best part of 15 minutes the real estate boosters would buzz on prayerfully until His Honor peeled off his horn rims and said in his richly mellow voice that here, indeed, was a worthy project deserving support of all civic minded persons, but just table it please for the nonce.

No Rehearsals Needed

THEN THE MAYOR, NEEDING no rehearsal in his part, would rise swiftly and strike a statesmanlike pose where the light was good and wreath his features in that particular expression of restrained jocularity which he reserved for the lower levels of sport performers. And occasionally, to heighten the drama, he would frisk some office gadget off his desk, like a brass-bound clock or a silver ornament, and pretend to present it to the athlete as a token of the city's esteem, afterward yanking the trinket back again and restoring it to its original position.

I never figured what the Mayor got out of this, except a smattering of goodwill from folk whose goodwill didn't amount to much. Because it has been many years since one of these handshake pictures got by the sports desk, which is always presided over by a gimlet-eyed Argus suffering from acid stomach and a preference for female tennis, swimming or skating pictures showing glimpses of nude or silken shanks.

It was likely that the Mayor welcomed these interludes with athletic stooges as a relexation from the boresome round of dealing with party moochers and persons of early mental age who treated his every utterance as gems of wit. For in his character as common people's champion he kept himself accessible to folks of all levels of life and submitted to dreary seances with sandlot politicos and militia shysters who came wheedling about topics likely to cost the taxpayers money and puckering their features into what they imagined were smiles but which in reality were smirks, painful both to themselves and the beholder.

Thus after blocking some halitosis heeler who was endeavoring to insert his arm into the public purse up to the elbow, it may have been a pleasant diversion for His Honor to shake off the cares of state and mingle with persons perfumed by honest perspiration or some ex-pushcart pedlar whose worst crime was the pretense he could wrestle or fight much of any at all.

* * *

I THINK I LIKED BEST the happy little meetings he used to hold in the council chamber when the Red Sox and Braves promoted charity games in the late summer and the mayor had summoned his department captains with an eye to shooting batches of tickets down their throats, in which the disposal of same was up to them.

The headman of the Public Works or Building Commission would rise and say with a pussycat smile that he thought he could handle 2000 such ducats. But the mayor would harrumph in his throat, peer p.o. undly over his rims, and say, "Put him down for 5000 with no refunds." And the P. W. or B. C. chief would slump down with a die-for-dear-old-Boston air and assume a sticky grin as though his garters had just busted. This was an annual shotgun performance in which the mayor stuffed tickets down his workers' gullets as a French pate-de-foie-gras maker thrusts corn into an overfed goose to give it the desired liver-trouble which forms the secret of the pate business. But it was for the common good and netted Boston's indigent families many bundles of fire fagots and pantry snacks.

The quality which has endeared James Curley to his public was based on the premise that he was as artless and unaffected as the simplest of his subjects. There was that time when wrestling was the rage and Danno O'Mahoney, as the world's champion of Boston, was cussing back and forth with Ed Don George and fanning up box-office appeal. So Curley, who at the time was Governor, passed out publicity memos saying that popular esteem was a precious thing and he hoped the rival athletes would not fail the high ideals of their profession by petty bickering. He called on them to wrestle at once, which they did in docile obedience to his command.

ONE REMEMBERS, too, the time when the horse promoters were squabbling over the location of a racetrack in 1934, until Curley spread his imperial paw toward East Boston and said, "Where now lies only a wilderness dump, let there be a beautiful garden spot where people may watch the horses run and benefit by fresh breathing air." And it came to pass!

It was the common touch which gained popular affections, which sometimes were displayed curiously. Like the day when he became Governor, and attended a holiday handicap feature at Suffolk Downs and, before the big event, rose to mention some tactful nothing through the amplifying horn. The burghers at that moment were in an irritable mood from having miscalculated the dobbins' speeds. So when His Excellency remarked that, though he was not a betting man, he had placed a "smuh-all wag-eh" on the outcome of the major race, the burghers responded with some rude noises made by forcing air over the tongue and through the lips.

And though his measured tones were drowned under a noise like a zoo at feeding time, the Governor thanked the citizens graciously and flirted his silk hat with a cheery wave as though construing their boos as worship. It was this knack for understanding the popular of the moment mood that endeared h.m to the citizens and restored h.s .. ic.ple throne.

'Get Javery on Phone,' Southworth Begins

By HERB FINNEGAN

Signed for three years to manage the Braves at a salary "greatly in excess of what I received from the Cardinals," Billy Southworth wasted no time laying the groundwork for the 1946 season.

"Duff," he addressed George E. Lewis, Braves secretary, "they tell me Al Javery lives in the vicinity. Get me his phone number. I'd like to speak to him while I'm in town." He inquired, too, for Tom Earley, Al Roberge and any other Braves who might go south in February.

Al Javery

He would like to get an early start at the Braves' new training base at Ft. Lauderdale. He would make no predictions as to where his '46 Braves would finish but he did think they had good prospects.

"Holmes? We couldn't get him out," said the pepper-pot who led the Cards to three pennants in five years. "The only way to stop him from hitting is to pitch behind him."

He was confident Mort Cooper would bound back resonantly. "He worked out with us in St. Louis after his arm operation and his arm seemed to be sound. Yes, I engineered the deal that sent him to the Braves. After all, he jumped our club, and a manager must have discipline. But we're still buddies."

He inquired for Sebby Sisti, Bama Rowell and Connie Ryan, all in the service.

"Sisti is a fine prospect," he said. "He has power and speed and great natural ability. You must remember he came up from Class A or B, and that was a terrible handicap. But he was coming fast when he entered the service, just like Rowell."

He thought Ryan was "the best second baseman in the league when he entered the service." All the kid needed was a little encouragement. He got two hits off Hughson and stole a base for me in the all-star game. He was ridden quite hard in New York after the Giants paid Atlanta $35,000 for him. He lost confidence momentarily. He'll be more mature when he returns."

He thought Singleton, Wright, Wallace, and Johnson were good pitching prospects and Masi perhaps the best receiver in the league.

He showed a surprising knowledge of the younger Braves, kids like Sain, Detweiler, Roberge, Spahn, and Ferrlandez who were around only a season or less. Of course he knew Max West. And when he learned Duffy Lewis had been with the Braves 16 years, he said "Great, let's get together. You must know all the players."

Southworth is all baseball. At the Cards' training camp in St. Pete he labored with Mike Gonzales from 8:30 every morning until 6:00 in the evening. He kept 80 players busy and content, seeing that they all got their equal share of batting. To do so he had double sessions morning and afternoon. That's right, four sessions a day. He plans two sessions daily with the Braves.

Nor is he hard to find like Bill Terry used to be. As he himself said: "In all my years with the Cardinals I was out of my room only four nights. And those four nights I was back before curfew. You can get in touch with me anytime, night or day. And don't hesitate to call."

Southworth is no driver. He played for McGraw but didn't indorse all his tactics. In fact he used to jam quite often with the Giants' leader. He never criticizes a player in front of the team.

"I don't mention his mistakes after losing a close one until the next day. Then I talk to him individually. In other words I treat my men as I always wanted to be treated when I was a player—and never was."

He foresees no great shakeup in the Braves' roster, but he did say that on his first pennant winner in '42 there remained only seven players from the 1940 team which he took over on June 14.

"Some players outlive their usefulness with a club," he said, and it was noted that Mize, McGee, Bowman and Padgett were traded in those years. "It's not that they haven't ability, just that they don't fit into the pattern of baseball the club is playing."

The pattern of baseball the Braves will play is the Cards' "extra-base" pattern. Kids like Ryan, Fernandez and Sisti should sparkle under their new manager.

* * *

Lou Perini speaking: "The Cubs wanted Javery early in '44 when he was pitching great ball. In exchange we asked for Lowery, D'Allesandro, Pafko, Becker and pitcher Erickson. 'Five for one!' exclaimed the Cubs. 'That's rubbing it in!' Later they did agree to give us four but before the deal could be concluded Jave's arm went bad. Said the Cubs' Jimmy Gallagher last spring, 'If that deal had gone through and Jave couldn't pitch for us, I'd have been chased out of town.' " . . . Pafko and Lowery were prime factors in the Cubs' pennant drive in '45 . . . Southworth was with Cleveland in 1915 when Duffy Lewis was in his heyday with the Red Sox. "I remember tripling over Tris Speaker's head with Joe Wood pitching," he said. That was some trick, old-timers will agree.

Hagg, 14 Other Track Stars Named as Pros

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 8 (AP)—Arne Andersson and Gunder Hagg, world record-holding Swedish runners, and 13 other top-ranking Swedish track stars were declared professionals today by the Swedish Athletic Ass'n, the newspaper Expressen said.

There was no official announcement as yet from the association, which has been conducting a sweeping investigation into the entire Swedish track setup.

Earlier the association announced a finding that payments of fees to top Swedish track stars by leading sports clubs constituted a breach of amateur regulations and indicated there would be disciplinary measures against both clubs and performers. The association did not name the individuals involved, and had announced it would not do so until completion of the nation-wide inquiry.

A finding that Andersson s professional would cancel his projected trip to the United States for the indoor season this winter.

Braves to Pay $500,000 To Get Pennant Winner

By JACK CONWAY

THE BRAVES management, as represented by President Lou Perini, will spend $500,000 to give Billy Southworth a ball club which will have the necessary ability to make a worth-while try for a National League pennant. It is the first time in the history of National League baseball in this city that club owners have committed themselves to invest half a million dollars to gain a pennant winner.

When the 1914 Braves won the National League championship and defeated the Athletics in four straight games in the world's series, they only had a makeshift club. Their success was gained as a result of brilliance of their "Big Three" pitchers, Bill James, George Tyler and Dick Rudolph, the superb catching of Hank Gowdy, and the infield work of Rabbit Maranville at short, Johnny Evers at second base, Charley (Butch) Schmidt at first base and "Red" Smith and Charley (Chuck) Deal at third base. Stallings used right-handed hitters in his outfield against left-handed pitchers and left-handed batters against right-handed flingers.

Lou Perini

It was spirit as much as good pitching that enabled the Braves to move from last place on July 4 to the head of the league. This same drive could not carry through in 1915 which was the year Braves Field was completed.

The syndicate that purchased the Braves from Charley Adams and Bruce Wetmore did not have sufficient funds to go after many high priced ball players. It also came into baseball at a time when the war was coming up, and later stars started entering the armed forces.

The fact Charley Adams and Bruce Wetmore owned control of Suffolk Downs banned them from active participation in the affairs of the Braves. They had Bob Quinn represent them. Judge Landis had a silly rule which kept people interested in race tracks from controlling the management of a ball club.

"I always felt that if I were to spend $500,000 on the Braves that I could get a winner," Adams once told me. "With Judge Landis set against anyone in horse racing getting mixed up in baseball I could not do what I would have liked."

★ ★ ★

Club Has Lacked Cash

JUDGE EMIL Fuchs earlier had failed to pilot the Braves to the heights. On one occasion the Judge left his mahogany desk in the front office to manage the club himself, but his effort failed.

Even Babe Ruth, in the late autumn of his baseball career, could not spark the Braves to victory. After a few futile attempts to do so, Babe quit the club and returned to New York.

What Fuchs lacked in playing material and in cash he attempted to make up for by his love for baseball. Fuchs passed up a permit for a dog track at National League Park, which later happenings proved would have netted him $1,000,000 in a few years, to continue along with his losing baseball cause.

The Judge went down with his baseball ship, but when I see him occasionally at the race track he never expresses any regrets for his action. He is still a baseball man above everything else as he moves into a mutuel line to bet a few bob on a horse.

Night Baseball in '46

THE BRAVES will play night baseball at National League Park next year. I would prefer seeing the Braves playing their day and night games at Fenway Park, and have Messrs. Perini, Maney and Rugo, all in the contracting business, tear down the stands at National League Park and convert the place into an ideal football stadium where the Boston Yanks, Boston College, and other clubs could play.

Yawkey, however, says he invested $4,000,000 in the Red Sox because he wished to keep his baseball property for himself much as he would his private hunting lodge in the Carolinas. Perhaps the owners of the Braves will decide on extensive changes in the stands at National League Park after they get the playing end of their team organized.

Bill Carey, when president of the New York Garden, built the outdoor arena for the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami Beach, Fla., in ten days, while he scooped out a big section of earth and completed the Garden Bowl at Long Island in two weeks. The Boston owners should be able to match the engineering and construction genius of Carey.

Pick Dellicurti Over Chemel

By RINGSIDE

Vic Dellicurti of New York will rule a favorite over Henry Chemel of this city when they collide in a 10-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at the Arena tomorrow night. It will be the first boxing show to be staged at the St. Botolph st. building since Walter Brown spent $65,000 remodeling the place.

Another 10-round go will feature Bernie McNally of Cambridge against Art Ramsey of Boston.

Ellis Phillips of Philadelphia, who recently knocked out Gus Mell, will collide with George Larover, also of Philadelphia, in a 10-round bout at the opening of the Sharkey A. A. at the Arena on next Tuesday night. Mell was a heavy choice over Phillips, but ended up on the canvas with the referee counting him out.

Larover is a heavy puncher and a good boxer, and he hopes to win from Phillips.

John Henry Eskew, Brockton, the middleweight with the blackout punch, will be shooting for his eighth straight kayo-win next Monday night in the Calianan A. C. 10-round feature at Mechanics Building when he fights Al "Red" Priest, Cambridge.

Hard Problem Ahead Of Watertown Coach

By MIKE GILLOOLY

It wasn't bad enough for Coach Frank Keany to go through six straight games without a victory but now, with the issuance of marks, he's lost four of his slim Watertown High School football squad for the remaining three games on the schedule — starting Saturday against Revere.

Coach Keany took over this coaching berth after his discharge from the U. S. Army. He had coached at Thomaston, Ct., for four years before his 4-year hitch as a navigator in the Air Corps.

You can imagine how he must have felt when his first Watertown team took a 35-0 shellacking at the hands of Saugus in the opening game of the season. He'd hardly recovered from that one when Winchester (13-0), Brookline (27-0) and Wakefield (20-0) fired blanks at his team. Newton next took a hand (13-6) before Watertown broke the spell against Woburn (7-7).

Coach Keany's disciplining has aroused the squad to a fighting pitch. Recently, he sidelined 16 of them for not sticking strictly to training regulations. All have apologized since and now they're probably a much better group for having served their punishment —not being allowed to play in the Brookline game.

Of the eleven first stringers, Coach Keany will have six returning next fall. Four will be in the line and two in the backfield.

End Frank Cousineau, 180-pound passer, place-kicker, punter and even a ball carrier, will head the list of underclassmen who will be back. Other linemen being developed are Dick Greenough, 170-pound guard; Rudy Hoiseth, 180-pound tackle, and Jack Agahigan, 210-pound center. They've been working the line with co-captain Dick Quinn, 165-pound end; guard Gus Grace, 165, and tackle Bob Handrahan, 200.

In the backfield, Coach Keany has a pair of sophomores at the halves. Aram Majarian, 126, is probably the fastest ball carrier on the squad. Art Shannon, 140, is a good all-round player who'll come into his own next fall. They work with qb Joe Boyce, 145, in the T and with co-captain Hank Germajian, 170-pound fullback. Dick McBride, 140-pound passer, works a lot into this combination.

Watertown hopes to salvage one victory out of its schedule this fall but it'll be a tough assignment with Revere, then Marlboro at Camp Devens next Tuesday and Belmont Thanksgiving Day.

All of Coach Keany's spare backs are sophomores. They include Billy Wickstrom, Roy Clark, 170-pound brother of Bobby, former all-scholastic; John Gorman, Benny Akillian, Tom Roach and Bey Feeney. Reserve ends list: Arko Bougouzian, Lenox Cooper, Dallas Carlisle, Dick Mahony, Frank Puccia, Tony Marcantonio; tackles, Sal Crupi, John McNamara, Nazareth Manassius, Leo McKeon; guards, Vahan McKertick, Chester Crossman, Henry Kasbarian, Andre Godefrow; centers, Phil Joannides and Vernon Akillian.

Jockey Club Bans Tom Smith

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (INS)—The stewards of the Jockey Club today revoked the license of Tom Smith, trainer of Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Maine Chance Farms stable, and ordered that he be denied the privileges of all tracks on a charge that he doped a horse.

The penalty is in effect for one year, ending Nov. 1, 1946.

Famous as the trainer of Seabiscuit and Kayak II when these two thoroughbreds won the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, Smith was charged specifically with using ephedrine, a stumulant, on magnific duel, winner of the third race at Jamaica on Nov. 1.

The Maine Chance horses in Smith's care have won $507,945 this year, setting an all time high for a woman owner.

The stable is not involved in the action by The Jockey Club.

In addition to revoking Smith's license for a year, the stewards also set down Ernest Pevler and James Shelley, Maine Chance foremen for 30 days.

Army Prepared For Dancewicz

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—Notre Dame's Frank Dancewicz is conceded to be one of the finest forward passers in college football ranks but he will have to make his tosses especially accurate against Army this Saturday, if Coach Earl Blaik of Army has anything to say about it.

The red headed Cadet mentor was rather high on the record of his club on pass defense to date. The Cadets have intercepted six enemy tosses for a net gain of 66 yards. One was a 52 yard touchdown romp by Doc Blanchard in the Wake Forest game.

During the press conference, Blaik stated that he was sure the opposition provided this year was better than a year ago. He also indicated that Army has met tougher teams to date than has the Irish.

The 38 man squad will depart by bus for the Knollwood Country Club, Friday morning, and will work out at the Yankee Stadium at 2:30.

Tom Haggerty Takes Over at Loyola U.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (AP)—Tom Haggerty, director of athletics and former baseball coach at De Paul University, is the new cage coach at Loyola University. His appointment for three years came with announcement that Loyola was ready to resume intercollegiate basketball competition after suspension during wartime.

Ray Meyer, basketball coach at De Paul for the last three years, was named to succeed Haggerty and in addition will retain his coaching job.

English Soccer Star Sold for $56,000

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Tom Lawton, usually described as the best English center-forward of the past 20 years, was sold to the Chelsea Club for between $40,000 and $56,000 today in one of the biggest deals in the history of British football.

The exact price was not disclosed either by Chelsea or by the Everton Club, which Lawton joined 10 years ago when he was 17. Lawton is still in the British army and not due for demobilization until next June.

Just Back

Old and new friends aren't forgotten by Chaplain Daniel C. DeCourcey of Cambridge, who writes down addresses of Red Cross worker Katherine Warner and Capt. Walter Brooks, both of Milton, on arriving here aboard the Howard Victory.

INP by Harry Simard

Interested

News of Boston interests Lt. Sydney L. Davis of Brighton as he awaits transportation from the Army Base after arriving home from Europe today aboard the Lincoln Victory. The ship brought in 3111 men.

Celebrate

PFC Joseph Guzzi (left) of Waltham and PFC Warren Clark of Medford light up a cigar for PFC Alfred Daniels of Beachmont to celebrate their arrival home from Europe aboard the Howard Victory.

INP by Harry Simard

Handout

WAC Pvt. Mary Lafferty has issues of the new port newspaper to offer (l. to r.) Cpl. Charles Kermach of Roxbury, Cpl. Roy Nelson of Swampscott, Cpl. Roy Bradbury of Allston and Sgt. Melvin Podalsky of Chelsea . . . after they stepped ashore from the Lincoln Victory today at the Army Base.
